

Australian Registered Migration Agent

Article by: Wendy Bowden

Under Australian Law for Migration Agents in Australia to be registered as a person providing immigration assistance they must be registered with the Migration Agents registration Authority (MARA). This Authority regulates the migration advice profession within Australia. It also undertakes a range of functions including administering continuing professional development and monitoring the conduct of registered migration agents. All Registered Migration Agents are bound by MARA's Code of Conduct in how they interact and work with clients and they also have to meet these standards within the code so that they can re-register annually.

Australia is a good choice to migrate for many reasons including its endless miles of unspoilt sandy beaches, lush forests and bushland, mountain ranges, recreational parks and scenic picnic spots. It also has great waterfront locations with fantastic outdoor lifestyles including cafes and restaurants for you to relax. There are many unique attractions along with annual events and festivals held throughout the year. The many warm days with clear blue skies, create an ideal environment for family and business activities all year round. The State of Perth is in Western Australia and it is a vibrant young city undergoing massive growth. It offers an incomparable outdoors life style with magnificent beaches and crystal clear oceans skirting the metropolitan area. The climate is reputed to be one of the best in the world and comparable to sunny Californian or Mediterranean climates. West Aussies are renowned for their love of the sea and the closer they can live to it the more they are willing to pay for the privilege. Many migrants have successfully settled in Australia and have achieved their dreams.
