Mesothelioma is a serious disease caused by breathing asbestos, which is the name given to a number of naturally occurring fibrous silicate minerals that are essential for their useful properties. Asbestos can only be identified under a microscope. It is made up of microscopic bundles of fibers that may become airborne when distributed. These fibers get into the air and may become inhaled into the lungs, where they may cause significant health problems. Asbestos affects the chest, the abdomen and the heart of the person who is exposed to it.. Exposure to asbestos may cause lung cancer. It must be noted that a Mesothelioma lawsuit must be filed within a certain period of time as required by the Statute of Limitations. The time period varies from state to state.

While hiring a lawyer to file a lawsuit for Mesothelioma, care should be taken to see that the prospective lawyer is not only a specialist in this area, but is a thorough professional who can empathize with the client and works for him in a caring, understanding and respectful manner.

A person who has been diagnosed with an asbestos-related malady can file a Mesothelioma lawsuit. Legal action must be taken when a person feels the symptoms of the disease, such as chest pain and pain in the lower back, difficulty breathing, coughing, weight loss, fever, muscle weakness, swelling of the face and arms, hoarseness, and night sweats.

In most cases, the statute of limitations for filing a lawsuit is one or two years from the date a person is diagnosed with the disease or, in the case of a wrongful death, the date that a person died of Mesothelioma. It is important to contact a Mesothelioma lawyer before the statute of limitations passes. Your lawyer can protect your rights and represent your interests. A specialist lawyer can tell you that several areas of personal injury law may apply to your case, such as product liability, professional malpractice and wrongful death.

Before hiring a lawyer, you must visit your local law center or library to see if he has actually won cases pertaining to Mesothelioma. It would be better to ask for references from those who had already filed lawsuits through him, to find out his success rate, fees and general conduct. A written contract must be signed before entrusting your case to him, so as to avoid any future misunderstandings.
