

The Legal Finance Industry the New Exciting Financial Product for Plaintiffs and their Attorneys

Article by: Mark Little

Imagine a place where one could receive a cash advance on a personal injury case, Make No Monthly Payments and have all Fees Forgiven if the Case Does Not Settle. LOSE the Case, KEEP the Money.

Relief is at hand. 99% of injured victims do not realize that they can collect money before their case settles and neither do their attorneys. They can receive money before the case has even come to trial. They can use the money to Pay medical bills, pay attorney fees, Buy food, keep from Loosing the Car, Home and their Life. They can use the money for whatever the need may be.

It's exasperating to see clients who have a good case but rush to settlement in order to relieve the terrible stress of personal debt. Insurance Companies continually take advantage of a plaintiff's precarious financial position to obtain lower settlements.

The need for pre-settlement funding services has been present for years. Plaintiffs frequently have financial hardships that need to be alleviated before their cases settle. Sometimes even attorneys have a need for cash prior to receiving their portion of a case settlement. However, only recently have avenues opened to allow effective addressing of this need. The point is that some personal injury victims need money and need it now...not later!

The most exciting part of receiving a pre-settlement cash advance is that it is not a loan; it is a cash advance on a qualified pending lawsuit. The Legal Finance Funding sources are not lenders. If the plaintiff does not win the case, they owe nothing.... Yes you read this right. LOSE THE CASE, OWE NOTHING! The money is theirs to keep! This can be a needed peace of mind a personal injury victim can find comfort over. Most are suffering enough already.

It must be understood that most people in this situation have no other choice but to accept a low settlement for a case that could be worth hundreds of thousands if not millions. That's why litigation finance lenders are prepared to advance cash now.

This will enable the plaintiffs and attorneys to level the playing field by providing money for living expenses, money for medical bills, money to give staying power to get the settlement that is deserved. If the case is accepted the funding sources are prepared to advance funds within 48 hours of obtaining the necessary information from the attorney.

The funding sources do not care how much money a plaintiff has or does not have. Also the plaintiffs credit is not important to them either. They take cases purely on the merits of the claim. If the funding sources attorneys research the claim and consider it viable, they will give a lump sum cash advance. It's that simple. Mark Little is President of Diversified Funding Services, Inc.
